Generally in our UU congregations White culture is considered to be the norm, and People of Color are expected to assimilate into this norm • The focus of UU justice work has historically been on the victims of racism, and not on the systems and institutions that are the beneficiaries of it • Understanding these dynamics is critical to our UU spiritual lives in order to fully live out our principles.

Registration: This workshop is being financially supported by a grant from the Kalamazoo Community Foundation, which allows us to have a flexible financial arrangement for participants. There is no required registration fee. However, in the spirit of the Buddhist concept of dana (generosity), we ask you to consider what amount might represent the intersection of the value of the workshop to you with your own financial means, and invite you to donate that amount to help us support this work. Make checks payable to People's Church.

□ _____ □ $25 □ _____ □ $50 □ _____ □ $100 □ _____ □ $150

Seating is limited. Priority will be given to members and friends of People's Church and ISAAC. On January 24, all remaining seats will be offered to the public on a first-come basis. Please register only if you are quite certain you will be able to attend, and notify the registrar if you subsequently learn you cannot. Even if you cannot afford to contribute financially, we do ask that you submit a registration form. For the public seats, you may send in a registration form at any time; you will be notified if a seat becomes available for you after January 24.
